CLUNY IS BUILDING UP RAPIDLY

Cluny is fast budding out and, providing the enterprising citizens continue to come in in the same manner as they have the past year it will not be long until it may be designated a town according to the statutes of this province. Up to a year ago there was little in Cluny save a box car station, a general store, postoffice and a section house. Today, however, it is a real live village and a hive of industry. In fact a trip of eight miles east of Gleichen will convince one that Cluny will soon be one of the important points, especially when the vast acres of cultivatable land are taken into consideration.

On Friday last the CALL man paid Cluny a visit and was surprised to note the many new buildings since his last visit only about two months previous. During that short time a second elevator had loomed up and several other places of business.

A visit to the elevators is most interesting and also pleasant, for the managers are most obliging and about the best boosters for Cluny we met in the place.

At the Alberta Pacific elevator the genial manager said: "We are doing a fine business here this year, and this is one of the best little grain houses in Alberta. Before I came here I looked over the company's books and saw the business done last year, and I chose this one from a long list, for I like to be in a new elevator and see the business growing. We took in 165,000 bushels of grain last year in this elevator, and the indications are certain that more will come into Cluny this year. Up to the present we have shipped twenty-five car-loads of grain from this elevator this season and have in the house about six cars. Yes, there has been fully 45,000 bushels taken in here up to today.

"Cluny is a good point and if our business men will show more enterprise it will, before long, be a town, for we have a district that cannot be excelled."

The manager at Ogilvie's elevator was quite busy, yet a very affable gentleman and said his firm was doing a good business in Cluny although their elevator had been built only this season. So far this season they had shipped about 25,000 bushels of grain and had in the elevator about 12,000 bushels. He said it was quite surprising to note the number of teams that hauled grain into Cluny every day and he was more pleased to say it was nearly all of the best quality.

Up to Friday the grain hauled into Cluny this season amounted to about 90,000 bushels, the Alberta Pacific handling 45,000, Ogilvie's 87,000, and there were shipped from the track about 8,000 bushels.

Besides the number of farmers hauling into Cluny in the immediate vicinity, great numbers come from the Queenstown district, some coming more than twenty-five miles. There will also be a good percentage of the Indian wheat from the Blackfoot reserve marketed at Cluny this year, according to Agent Gooderham.

It is not an unusual thing these days to see from 60 to 70 four-horse teams hauling grain into Cluny, and although everyone said Friday was an exceptionally quiet day, one restaurant man navigation was once more started. It was stated he had served dinner that in the mean time teams loaded day to 62 farmers. It was since learned that there was trouble at the ferry that day and some of the farmers did not reach the village until away into the night.

Mr. Foyayth has accommodation in his livery and feed stables and annex for 140 head of horses, and says that every night he is crowded and has to turn his own horses into the corrals.

The lodging houses, too, are crowded, and sleeping accommodation is frequently at a premium, while sometimes the farmers are glad of the opportunity to slumber in the hay lofts.

R. C. Ross is doing a big business in his general store, where he carries a large stock of goods. A. Wertz has a fine big pool room and barber shop, in connection with which he has a confectionery store, and sells fruit, cigars and soft drinks.

The Cluny Trading Co. also carries a good stock of general merchandise.

The Crown Lumber Co. and the Cluny Lumber Co. have good yards here. Besides the business places mentioned, there is a butcher shop, two restaurants, a boarding house, four implement agencies, two livery stables, and Jas. Binard buys and sells hay, grain etc., and as well has weighing scales and an implement business.

A blacksmith shop is now the most needed business in Cluny at present, but there are several other openings for men of enterprise.

A half mile south of Cluny the Dominion Government is building a boarding school for the Indians that is to cost in the neighborhood of $55,000 and for miles around it the Indian homes and farms are stretched. Near the school the Catholic Mission are preparing to move their church from the South Camp and to build it to it considerably.

Cluny has a wonderful supply of good clear water derived from flowing wells. It seems rather strange to see away up on the hill to the north of the village a six-inch water pipe stuck down into the ground and the water bubbling up several inches high, and stranger still to see this water run for some distance in the coldest weather before freezing.

A number of these flowing wells have been struck in Cluny and have been running constantly for five years.

QUEENSTOWN FOLKS HAVE TRYING TIME AT THE CLUNY FERRY

Friday, October 29th, the Queenstown grain haulers had another enforced picnic at the ferry. The river was filled with slush ice in the morning and the poor old ferry refused to navigate. The ferrymen had procured some stout ropes the evening before and teams were hitched on both sides of the river to pull the ferry over. Some how or other this did not work very swift at the start and the first trip across took more than an hour.

Then to make matters worse a load of wheat owned by N. Hall missed the ferry by a few feet and struck rock bottom. This caused a long delay and after everybody present had volunteered their advice on how to get the wagon across. An empty wagon was finally obtained and the said they ate like a pack of hungry wolves and he did not make a cent on supper that night nor breakfast next morning. Another great trouble arose when the crowd was

Ranchers and Farmers Working Profitably Together

Once more the ranchers and farmers are finding out their worth to each other, and many a farmer this winter will make several hundred dollars out of his straw piles and green feed which otherwise he would be obliged to burn, while the ranchers will make other hundreds by having their cattle winter fed and ready for the market in the early spring. One rancher states that last year he paid to a farmer alone $6,000 for feeding stock and smaller amounts to others.

Monday Wm. McNealy of Dorothy disposed of 100 head of fine steers to W. B. Campbell for which he says he received $100 a head. The same day Mr. Campbell purchased from T. Lawson and sons several hundred head and with some of his own stock turned into James Young 1,000 head to feed for the winter on his farm a half mile north of town. These cattle were round-up at Red Deer river and driven to Gleichen with a big bunch of others and those who witnessed the "cutting-out" say it was well worth beholding. Several of the old ranchers are complimenting the Lawson boys on the easy manner in which they cut-out the cattle and state there were no wild stampede exhibition. "It was done quietly with no grand stand play. In fact it might have been compared to a funeral considering the way some cowboys bellow over such work," said a rancher. "All we had to do was hold down our saddles for the cattle hardly moved twenty yards until the work was finished. Those boys know their business."

Grain Coming in Slow

The weather and roads could not have been better the past week for grain hauling, yet the amount brought in is less than half that of the previous week. The reason is the farmers are holding for better market prices. Some will hold on to the balance of their grain until next spring or summer unless the price is materially increased. It is stated that there is now nearly half of the grain marketed and it is feared there is not as much grain in the south country as first estimated. Cars are plentiful and a number ordered have been cancelled. Only eight car loads have been shipped during the week.

with wheat for Gleichen and Cluny to be housed overnight. The two kept on arriving from all directions and about 2 o'clock the scene looked like a country fair. There were around 75 teams waiting. As the weather was fine everybody took things rather good naturally until they began to get hungry. For as grain haulers eat breakfast from 2 to 3 o'clock a. m. they naturally get hungry towards evening. A committee on "grub" was organized but found nothing but wheat on the wagons. So the ferrymen's shack was raided and every morsel of food eaten. Then J. Aasgard came along from Gleichen and donated a few biscuits to the hungry horde. But as this didn't go very far a wireless message was sent to Cluny for relief to the famished. And right here is where our fellow farmer, Percy Kingsmith, earned the everlasting gratitude of the Queenstown farmers. It appears that Percy had been stranded in Cluny the day before when conditions at the ferry was about the same so when the cry reached Cluny Percy came to the rescue and sent out a big basket of sandwiches. Still in spite of these various handouts almost everyone had a large hole in his stomach when he reached Gleichen and the last man to cross the ferry A. Millikowsky did not reach Cluny till 12 o'clock midnight. The Cluny Restaurant man said they ate like a pack of hungry wolves and he did not make a cent on supper that night nor breakfast next morning. Another great trouble arose when the crowd was

The Pioneer school closes Dec. 1. Joe McCabe is giving his new barn a coat of red paint.

M. Munkholm has moved into Irving's house for the winter.

A few good films for a moving picture show can be had any day at the ferry.

John Hellevange is lying dangerously sick at his brothers house, with inflammation of the lungs.

Mrs. T. H. Thompson has gone to Norway for a short visit, while Mr. Thompson is busy hauling wheat.

There would be a good opening at the ferry for a restaurant to feed hungry and half frozen grain haulers.

Since grain hauling started in earnest Queenstown has been turned over to the women as every available man is on the trail.

A number of married Queenstown farmers who had promised to take their wives to the Lake McGregor school basket social and were compelled to stay over night in Cluny last Friday, were afraid to meet their angry better halves the following day.

The Lake McGregor School box social was a great success. The school was crowded with people from the south and west end of Queenstown and quite a few from Gleichen, Cluny and Vulcan. A surplus of $130 was made and is to be devoted for a new piano.

While Queenstown has not become famous from raising watermelons, melons can be raised just the same. Mrs. Stuniff claims to have raised one water-melon as big as a medium sized water-pail in her garden this year. Unfortunately the pigs made a raid on the garden and devoured the melon before it got ripe. Mrs. Stuniff says she is going to try again next year.

Do your Christmas shopping early.

Just seven weeks from today is Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Derkic visited their Gleichen friends on Friday last.

Shipped 426 Steers to Chicago Market

On Monday the P. Burns Co. shipped from the Stobart stock yards 426 head of fine heavy steers to Chicago, the average weight being about 1600 pounds. They were an exceptionally fine bunch of cattle and just taken off the range.

James Cameron, manager of the Bank of Commerce, accompanied by Mrs. Cameron, returned last week from a four-months vacation in England. While away they visited France and other countries and had a most enjoyable trip.

Miss Larkin was taken quite ill at Calgary last week and was obliged to remain there several days. She is now convalescing nicely.

Joe Marshall, the obliging night telephone operator, has been granted a well earned holiday and has gone to Edmonton for his vacation.

I don't understand, Joan faltered.

He looked away from her at the silent and gloomy house, and somehow she realised that he would believe no thing that she might say.

Get down, he said still without looking at her.

She obeyed him instantly.

He motioned to her to accompany him, but she stood still.

Where, she asked with difficulty. In there, he said, nodding towards the house. She shook her head.

I cannot, she said. I cannot enter there.

You must, he answered with a heavy and sombre intonation. Yes—you must enter.

She bowed her head as though obeying an order she had not the power to resist, and walked slowly but quite steadily to the door. On the threshold she paused and looked up at Thorold, and he felt her gentle gaze as though it burned into his soul.

Why have you brought me here? she asked.

Still he would not answer her, but he beckoned her on to follow him. In the hall he pointed up the stairs, and they to the room on the left hand.

The last time, he said, that I was here—

Oh, she interrupted astonished, oh, but have you been here?

As you well know, he answered coldly, believing that her astonishment was feigned. And then I found my brother lying here—shot dead—murdered.

Oh, murdered, she reentered with a bitter cry.

Ah, you did not know that either, he said, his voice full of a frightful scorn.

No, I did not know that either, she answered steadily.

And yet, he said, yet all the time you were in one of the rooms upstairs?

She looked at him, trying to understand.

It was that day, she said gently, when some one—you—tried to set this house on fire?

Ah, see, he muttered thickly, rent with anguish, see, all the time you know all about it in spite of your pretence of ignorance.

But your brother, he said, he was drawn—I saw the account in the paper.

Ah, he stammered, his rage more deadly still, for he thought she mocked him, he knew very well that I myself put that story about to hide the shame and the disgrace of his end—but it did not deceive you. It was here that he was murdered, cried Thorold in a voice of thunder.

Here, here, she said softly, nor for all his rage and the loud threat of his tones did she show the slightest sign of fear. It was here that your brother was murdered?

Aye, he said.

I did not know, she murmured.

Yet you were upstairs, he said. Do you dare to deny that you were hidden that day in one of the rooms upstairs?

I was there, she admitted slowly, but I

Yet you pretend you did not know that? he asked in scorn. When you admit so much, why deny anything?

At least, she flashed at him, I deny that I had any knowledge of that poor boy's death.

If you had not, who had? he asked.

She was silent, for how could she say it was her father who knew of the death of the brother of her husband?

He thought her silence was a confession, and he turned his face from 578 Gladstone Ave., Toronto, Ont.—"My baby's trouble began as a rash and the skin used to sometimes peel off and look as if it was going to get better, but would just cake over again and peel. The spots were large and it used to make her face very red and inflamed all the time. It came on her face, hands and arms, and it used to make her restless at night. She got the rash in March, and how I hated to see it on her little face and hands! I tried a lot of different things after that but nothing did any good. I saw the advertisement and sent for samples of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it started to get better right away. I used them only about once a day, and in little more than two weeks she hadn't a spot on her anywhere. She had it three months before I used the treatment. She has not had a mark on her since and she is two and a half years old now. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured pimples on my face."

her.

I should have told you, she murmured brokenly, remembering how often she had wished to confide in him her doubts and her suspicions of her father and his companions, and how as often she had shrunk from doing so and eagerly availed herself of the reluctance Thorold had always shown to let her speak of any such subject. Yes, I should have told you before, she muttered, it was wrong of me—cowardly—I am rightly punished.

Those broken words she muttered, he in his madness took for a further confession of her guilt.

Come in here, he said, opening the door of the drawing room.

Why have you brought me here? she asked again, and for the first time she began to be afraid. Why have you brought me here? Edward, why did you marry me?

Because I loved you so, he answered. Loved me? she repeated; now, is not that a strange thing for you to say to me?

It was God's will, he answered moodily.

She put up her hands with a puzzled and distressed gesture.

I do not understand, she said slowly; and then after a pause, she asked: Why do you look at me so?

I did not mean to, he muttered, turning his eyes away.

Oh, that is worse, she cried, trembling.

Enter he said pointing, and in terror she obeyed him and went into the drawing room.

It still smelt of oil. It still showed traces of the fire. Thorold looked about him gloomily, and Joan's fear had now so increased that she could hardly speak.

Edward, she panted, Edward, what is in your mind?—why do you look at me?

She answered him, I am here.

Oh, she interrupted astonished, oh, but have you been here?

As you well know, he answered coldly, believing that her astonishment was feigned. And then I found my brother lying here—shot dead—murdered.

Why are you here? she returned quickly, and then Thorold shuddered to remember for what purpose it was that he was on this spot.

For now his late passion seemed to him incredible, and he was like one who walking in his sleep suddenly awakens on the edge of a precipice.

Now what has happened? he muttered with a puzzled look. How did you get here? he asked again.

I came by train, she answered, watching him keenly. Green, the servant at Jermyn Gardens, came to me—she said—where is Joan?

Joan is here, Thorold answered.

Joan is here! she said, still watching him with all her soul in her eyes.

Yes, Joan is here, he repeated, and this time there was something in his voice that filled Dora with a sudden sense of intense relief. What did Green tell you? he asked after a short pause.

He told me, Dora answered, of this house. He told me how you and he found your brother here murdered. He said he believed you were so bad and foolish you believed Joan had something to do with your brother's death, and he said when you and he were here, Joan was a prisoner locked up and hidden in one of the rooms upstairs. But that he did not dare tell you for fear of what you would do—you were so bad and foolish.

Cure for Mosquitoes

London people have discovered—or adopted, rather—an agreeable way to keep their houses free from flies and mosquitoes. They burn sandalwood which has a pleasant odor, but one which is disliked by these summer pests. The idea has been imported from the Orient, where it has been used for many years. The sandalwood can be bought at almost any Turkish or Japanese importing house. It is prepared for burning by being cut up into pieces about half an inch thick and three inches long, and then baked or dried in a slow oven for twenty-four hours. A piece of the wood is then lighted and placed in a metal urn. After it has become well afame, the flame is extinguished and the red ember left to smolder until it is all consumed and only a small heap of fine gray ashes is left.

But he still stood, offering her the pistol with one hand and with the other mopping back the perspiration from his forehead. He was trembling and swaying so on his feet that she believed she could almost have overthrown him with one quick thrust of her arm.

Oh, poor fellow, she said pityingly. Don't talk like that to me, he cried in anger.

Ah, she muttered, I thought it would have been easier to die.

Obedying some impulse she raised her hands and let down her hair so that it flowed over her shoulders. He watched her every movement intently.

Well, come, she said, will you not listen to me?

I will listen to nothing, to nothing, in God's name, he cried wildly, and even as he spoke, the front door bell rang loudly, filling the house with its harsh clamor, pealing and clangling through the empty house.

CHAPTER XXII
The Locked Door

Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating

As old age advances we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment.

Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into a most digestible sugar.

The phosphates also, placed up under the outer-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but are lacking in white flour because the outer coat of the wheat darkens the flour and is left out by the miller. These natural phosphates are necessary to the well-balanced building of muscles, brain and nerve cells.

I have used Grape-Nuts," writes a Western man, "for 8 years and feel as good and am stronger than I was ten years ago.

Among my customers I meet a man every day who is well along in years and attributes his good health to Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together.

For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say 'I am well.' I suffered greatly with constipation, but now my habits are as regular as ever in my life.

Whenever I make extra effort I depend on Grape-Nuts food and it just fills the bill. I can think and write a great deal easier."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," 1 p. 10s.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

But why are you here?

Discover the Diary of Late Queen

Queen Mary is collecting personal belongings and souvenirs of the late Queen Victoria, which she will probably present to the London Museum. At Osborne, Isle of Wight, Queen Mary found a most interesting diary the late queen kept when a girl, and many caricatures by her of celebrities of the mid-Victorian days. At Balmoral, many personal souvenirs of Queen Victoria have been discovered, including some charming love letters from the prince consort which, of course, will be kept from the public eye.

Families of Three in England

Families of three are more numerous than any others in England, according to a blue book recently issued. Such families constitute 19 per cent. of the total number; those of four, 18 per cent.; of five, 14 per cent.; and those of six, 10 per cent. In London the women living alone outnumbered the lonely men to the extent of 58,594 to 37,130.

Landlady (to applicant for rooms)—Beg pardon, sir, but what business do you follow?

Applicant—I am a doctor of music.

Landlady—Oh, then, we shall be glad to have you with us, and I'm sure you will do well here, for there's lots of music in this locality that needs doctoring.

The Caller

The Caller—Who is that singing?

The Hostess—That's our new maid. She always sings at her work.

The Caller—What a happy disposition! Mercy, how loud she sings.

The Hostess—Yes. When she sings loud she's breaking something.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, that is, by continual remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is perfectly closed, you have no hearing at all.

Now what has happened? he muttered with a puzzled look. How did you get here? he asked again.

I came by train, she answered, watching him keenly.

Joan is here! she said, still watching him with all her soul in her eyes.

Yes, Joan is here, he repeated, and this time there was something in his voice that filled Dora with a sudden sense of intense relief. What did Green tell you? he asked again.

One afternoon Mrs. Murphy appeared at the settlement house, all dressed up in her best bonnet and shawl. A huge black and blue spot disfigured one side of her face, however, and one eye was nearly closed. Why, Mrs. Murphy, what is the matter? cried one of the teachers, and then, realizing that she might have asked a tactless question, she hastily turned it off by saying: Well, cheer up; you might be worse off. Sure an' I might, responded the indignant Mrs. Murphy. I might not be marred at all.

Sarcasm

Nobody now living has ever been killed at a grade crossing. Still, this is no argument in favor of the grade crossing.

Teacher—Now, Willie, where did you get that chewing gum? I want the truth.

Willie—You don't want the truth, teacher, an' I'd rather not tell a lie.

Teacher—How dare you say I don't want the truth? Tell me at once where you got that chewing gum Sir Samuel saw sweet Sarah's sweetness. Sarah! Sir Samuel's self-sacrificing spirit.

Sir Samuel soon sought Sarah, striding slowly. Sarah sighed; Sir Samuel seemed speechless.

Say something, Sir Samuel, said Sarah.

Say Sam! Sarah, said Sir Samuel. Sarah smiling softly, said 'Sam!'

Sarah—Sally, stammered Sir Samuel. Sweet Sarah—sweetheart!

Sarah smiling surrendered.

Youngest Volcanoes in B.C.

Professor Burwash, who has been at work on the geology of British Columbia for several years, has returned from an examination of Garibaldi, which may have the effect of placing that splendid mountain and some of its neighbors in the position of being the youngest volcanoes in the province. He went up to the recent summer camp of the B.C. Mountaineering Club, and accompanied by the president, Mr. W. J. Gray, made a careful study of the district. He has found that Garibaldi, Red Mountain and another smaller volcano have been built upon a glaciated surface about 5000 feet high. None of the three volcanoes bears the marks of glaciation, except insofar as their own home-grown glaciers have been able to modify their outlines in some very slight degree. But the work of such local glaciers requires very careful looking for; whereas the platform from which the volcanic piles stand up has been glaciated so intensely that even the inexperienced eye can recognize it. The lava streams which flowed from the volcanoes, and the bed of stuff which were formed by the accumulation of the fragmentary material blown out of their craters during eruption, are all to be traced, cold, black, and forbidding, lying upon the gently undulating surface of the glaciated plateau.

Professor Burwash believes the evidence he has obtained sufficient to prove that these volcanoes came into existence during the second stage of the glacial epoch. He regards it as very doubtful, however, if the volcanic action had begun when the first stage of the glacial epoch was on. The general moulding of the platform on which Garibaldi stands was done during that earlier stage when the ice spread far and piled high.

These are very important results. Something of the geological interest of the district was recognized by the members of the Mountaineering Club during the summer camps. The photographs which appeared in the Northern Cordillera, together with the descriptive notes of Messrs. Gray and Samson, showed the desirability of having an examination made by a geological expert. Now that this has been done an important additional interest has been given to the Alpine hinterland of Vancouver.

Always Something

Harry Lauder told an amusing story the other day of two Glasgow women who met in the street, and began to discuss the domestic affairs of a newly married couple.

Aye, Mrs. McTavish, said one, so Jeannie's got married.

She has that, Mrs. McAlpine, replied the other.

An' how's the gettin' on? the first woman wanted to know.

Oh, no sae ba' at' was the reply.

There's only one thing the matter. She thinks she could ha' got a better man. But then there's aye something!

This isn't like the bread mother makes, said the young married man. So you are going to star, that, are you?

I was merely congratulating you. Mother never was a very good bread-maker.

Tillie's Philosophy

Tillie Clinger says she may be mistaken, but she estimates that spending two months' salary for a two weeks' vacation is about like buying thirty dollars' worth of gingersnaps.

In order of output, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, West Virginia, and Maine are the greatest lime producing states.

The Philippines government has set aside $750,000 to be loaned to sugar planters to assist them in making and marketing their crop for the current year.

HOW TO TREAT ALL SKIN TROUBLE

Greasy Ointments No Use—Must Be Cured Through the Blood

It is not a good thing for people with a tendency to have pimples and a blotchy complexion to smear themselves with greasy ointments. In fact, they couldn't do anything worse, because the grease clogs the pores of the skin, making the disease worse. When there is an irritating rash a soothing boracic wash may help allay the pain of itching, but of course it doesn't cure the trouble. Skin complaints arise from an impure condition of the blood and will persist until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema and skin diseases because they make new, rich blood that drives out the impurities, clears the skin and imparts a glow of health. The following proof is offered. Mrs. Fred Tremble, Gunter, Ont., says: "For more than a year I was steadily afflicted with salt rheum or eczema. My hands were so sore that I could not put them in water without the skin cracking open. I tried all sorts of ointments recommended for the trouble, but they did not do me a particle of good. I was told Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would cure the trouble, and began taking them. I took the pills steadily for six or eight weeks and they completely cured the trouble. This was several years ago and I have never been bothered with it since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Be Careful of Your Seed

The following have recently been convicted of breaches in the Dominion Seed Control Act: Henry Wilson, Edmonton; J. R. Hamilton and Son, Edmonton; J. B. Griffith, Stettler; J. Gilliland & Bro., Stettler; R. A. Webster, Cochrane.

All the above convictions were for selling grain containing noxious weed seeds without indicating the presence of same as required by Section 6 of the Seed Control Act. In addition, J. Gilliland & Bro., of Stettler, were convicted of selling timothy seed containing more weed seeds than allowed under section 9 of the act.

It is the intention of the Dominion department of Agriculture to strictly enforce all the provisions of the Seed Control Act throughout the West, and all persons handling seed should see to it that such seed is sown in accordance with the act.

A well equipped Seed Laboratory is at the service of all who desire to have seed tested. Copies of the Act and information as to the same may be obtained from the Dominion Seed Branch, Calgary.

Produce, But Produce the Best

The extent of the home market for dairy products in the province is shown by the report for the year ending Dec. 30th, 1912, issued by the dairy commissioner. As a contrast between the demand now existing for butter fat and that of ten years ago, he quotes the statement made recently by Mr. J. A. Buddick, Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, in the course of his analysis of the general dairy situation in the Dominion:

"During the period when the creameries in Alberta and Saskatchewan were operated by the Dominion government, it was a part of my duty to find a market for the butter produced therein. In 1903 the total output of creamery butter in these provinces was less than three-fourths of a million pounds. At that time there was no butter being shipped to the western provinces from Eastern Canada, yet we found it necessary to export over 100,000 pounds to Great Britain to avoid a serious glut in the British Columbia and prairie markets."

To this is appended the state of affairs as it existed in 1912:

Alberta and Saskatchewan produced about four million pounds of creamery butter in 1912, at least 11,200,000 pounds were shipped from Ontario and Quebec to points west of the great lakes, 5,600,000 pounds will be imported from New Zealand [April 1912 to May 1913] making a total of twenty million pounds in 1912-13 as against half a million pounds which met the requirements in 1903-04. These figures refer to creamery butter only, but there also has been a very large increase in the output of dairy butter in the western provinces, most of which is consumed locally.

The existence of a large home market should be an incentive to farmers to give the dairy side of farming the attention it deserves. The demand is here, and there is nothing in the way of a chance of the goods being left on his hands to hinder the producer in enlarging his supply.
Alberta butter will be absorbed as quickly as it is placed on the market, with one provision. And this is a very important one to bear in mind. It is not only a matter of quantity in production but essentially one of quality. The commissioner does not fail to emphasize this when he remarks that our dairymen and creamery operators have to face a competition in quality. Shippers in eastern Canada now send their best quality of creamery butter to the western markets, whereas formerly their western shipments were generally lower grades, while the best quality was used for export to Great Britain.

The butter imported into western Canada from New Zealand is, likewise, of uniformly fine grade. Therefore to quote the words in the report: "There is but one thing for the producer to do if he wants to successfully cater to the trade in his home market that demands the best products obtainable, and that thing is to produce the best."

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

Yankees Coming to Canada by Thousands

Terrific denunciation of the present American land laws by Congressman Scott Ferris of Oklahoma, chairman of the house committee on public lands, was the feature of the third day's session of the International Dry Farming Congress, held at Tulsa, Okla. Ferris referred to present laws as crude, irreconcilable, inefficient without uniformity, confusing to the brain of the settler, impossible of interpretation by the layman and a jargon of inconsistencies that retard progress and development. He said that the people of the United States are today going to the western provinces of Canada by tens of thousands in preference to finding homes in the United States largely because the Canadian land laws are much more liberal than those this side of the line.

"We are glad for our Canadian brothers that this is so," the speaker said, "but we are sorry for ourselves, and it is up to the congress of the United States and to this Dry Farming congress to so work for the revision of the United States laws that they shall at least equal in liberality those prevailing in the western provinces of Canada and thereby hold our people at home. Most of our land laws of today are not laws at all but simply a jargon of executive orders, rulings, interpretations and decisions made by various bureau chiefs and clerks in various ramifications of various interior departments. Four different secretaries of the interior, Ballinger, Garfield, Fisher and Lane have each had different views on the policy and questions of law, while the poor confused homesteader and miner has suffered thereby. Many of these decisions are not only independent of each other but are contrary to law as well. They are actually obstructive to the settlement of the west and a blight on the development of the unbounded resources of a nation that is richer than we know. We have coal enough for seven thousand years at the present rate of use, oil enough to last fifty centuries, iron ore for a thousand years and phosphate rock for five thousand more. Our annual growth of timber is more than twice the consumption. In spite of these resources the conservationist at Washington would tie them all up without regard to use. I have been member of the public lands committee eight years and so far as I can see, all that the government has done is withdraw from any sort of entry the major portion of public lands of the west that are valuable for any purpose. We should fight monopoly and greed at every turn but we should not inflict federalism and long range government on the honest settler seeking a home until we blight all his hopes, his ambitions and his endeavor."

The merchant encourages us to always buy a good article in preference to that which may be cheapest. He is right, without doubt, but how often he fails to learn this lesson himself. Especially is this noticeable in stationery—some envelopes which reach us through the mail are a disgrace to the sender. We wonder if the merchant always understands that his business is measured oftentimes by the class of stationery he sends out—yes, even the quality of paper in the bills he renders—we venture to say that there is nothing which points out a business man's carefulness and general makeup more plainly than the quality and style of the stationery he uses. It advertises his standard—it announces clearly to the public what class of goods they may expect at his store.

Interesting News From Queenstown

U. F. A. Annual Meeting to be Held Friday, Dec. 5th. Officers and Delegates to be Elected

Mr. A. A. Allston and his sister Mrs. Shipley has moved into Ashe's place to take care of the stock.

Christ Helevange is now putting the finishing touches on a fine new house he has built this fall on his purchased homestead.

Frank Pabst leaves for his fruit farm in Wenatchee, Wash., taking his family along. He intends to return next spring to put in a crop on his homestead here.

Harry Baker, another of our non-resident Queenstown landowners, arrived from his Minnesota farm a couple of weeks ago to look after his great wheat crop.

There will be rendered a short program followed by a dance in the Pioneer School Friday evening, Nov. 21st. The program will be under the direction of Miss Wallwork, the Pioneer school teacher.

John L. Ash and wife left for their old Michigan home last Friday for a short visit. They did not intend to go till about Christmas time, but a telegram received stating that Mr. Ashe's father was very sick caused them to change their plans.

James Halfpenny came up from his Montana homestead a couple of weeks ago to look after his threshing on his holdings here. Jim says the Montana land does not compare with Queenstown, still he is willing to take all he can get out of Uncle Sam. He has rented his Queenstown farm to Ernest Burk, who has already rented Harry Thompson's place.

On Friday, Dec. 5th, the chief event of the season, the Farmers' Union annual meeting will take place in the Pioneer school. The business meeting will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. This will include election of officers, delegates to the U. F. A. convention at Lethbridge in January next and an outside speaker if possible will be obtained to address the meeting. After supper the Queenstown artists will produce their famous play "A Family Quarrel," which is supposed to take about 2 hours time. The balance of the evening will be devoted to dancing.

Especially is this noticeable in stationery—some envelopes which reach us through the mail are a disgrace to the sender.

If the merchant sends out a wishy-washy rag of a letterhead, envelope, invoice or statement, the public may reasonably expect the same quality and cheapness in the merchant's stock of goods.

Just think over the business firms you are acquainted with and notice the quality of their stationery.

And Mr. Business-man, think this over too and see that you do not suffer for proper attention to this sometimes neglected but very necessary detail.

Not Mixed Farming, but Farming

When an intelligent observer, after studying conditions in the west, advises that the farmer should raise some stock, keep a few cows, raise vegetables, for his own use or for market, when, in a word, it is suggested that he follow the methods of farming in the older settled provinces, we say the west is being advised to go into mixed farming. Why the qualifying adjective "mixed"? The man who raises nothing but grain year in and out, who supplies his table with vegetables from the town grocer, who lives on canned meat and satisfies condensed milk, is not farming in the best sense. He is a miner, taking riches from the soil, just as truly as the man who mines for silver, or coal, or gold, only he does not have to dig into the bowels of the earth. His riches come to him from the soil, and appear in the golden heads of grain. They do not put it so bluntly, but what these well meaning advisers have in mind is that the men of the west should cease mining, and take up farming—what we have come to call mixed farming. There can be no gainsaying the wisdom of the advice. We cannot forever rob the soil of its richness and expect it to retain its fertility. If we are to take from the ground the goodness that Nature has implanted in it, we should return to the soil in the form of fertilizers something of that which we take away.

But there is another side to the economic aspect of the situation. The unadvised of putting all one's eggs 'a one basket' is as potent today as it ever was. A partial failure of a grain crop may mean to many a grain grower the difference between comfort and financial embarrassment, but if he be fortified with a few head of stock, if he has a small dairy herd, and some hogs, and a garden, even a complete failure would not seriously inconvenience him. In the earlier days of the west, there was nothing for it but to raise grain. There were practically no markets for farm produce. But with cities and towns springing up all over the country, that day has passed, and there are now many centres that would gladly avail themselves of fresh supplies direct from the farm.

Farming, mixed farming, if you will, would, as J. Obed Smith, Dominion Superintendent of emigration in London, has pointed out, go a long way toward solving the farm labor problem, by affording employment the year round for farm labor, that is now set adrift at the end of the harvest and threshing. And this matter of growing importance to the farmer of the west. To be assured of help when needed, help that has been trained and knows the work and the country, would be a mighty boon. Viewed from almost any standpoint the arguments seem strongly to favor farming, rather than mining.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

A man of letters who visited Washington recently appeared at but one dinner party during his stay. Then he sat next to the daughter of a noted naval officer. Her vocabulary is of a kind peculiar to very young girls, but she rattled away at the famous man without a moment's respite. It was during a pause in the general conversation that she said to him,

"I'm awfully stuck on Shakespeare. Don't you think he's too terribly interesting?"

Everybody listened to hear the great man's brilliant reply, for as a Shakespearian scholar he has few peers.

Yes, he said, solemnly. I do think he is interesting. I think he is more than that. I think Shakespeare is just simply too cute for anything.

Cheapest of Oils.—Considering the curative qualities of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil it is the cheapest of all preparations offered to the public. So, being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

Yer
The banality of a sea poem by Alfred Noyes led a Philadelphia southerner at the Franklin Inn to say:

This poem of the sea reminds me of a young woman from Illinois who saw the Atlantic for the first time last week at Cape May.

As she stood on the windy beach, gazing dreamily out over the water, I said to her:

"So this is the first time you have ever seen the sea, eh?"

"Yes, the very first time, she answered.

"And what do you think of it? I asked.

"Ah, she said, with an ecstatic smile, it smells just like oysters."

GIRL'S NERVES FULLY RESTORED

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indolent life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despair of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 395 Woodville Avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl."

Not all in Many Acres

The other day one of the leading Toronto papers in its agricultural section, published the story of the success of John Clark, brother of the Dominion Seed Commissioner Clark. Put into a few words, the story was to the effect that Mr. Clark, after going along for some years on a 200 acre farm, without making very much profit, decided that he would try a smaller area. He purchased a run down tract of 25 acres close to a town and devoted his attention to intensive production of fruits, honey, poultry products and vegetables. The result has been that for the past two or three years he has made a profit of about five thousand dollars a year. We make reference to this simply to give point to the statement that there are many farmers in Western Canada living on farms far too large for their means and their energies, who would do far better on a small area, reasonably close to a good town, the treatment of the farm being of more intensive a nature. While we cannot grow fruit in these prairie provinces just like they can raise it in Ontario, still we can keep poultry and bees with equally as much profit; and also, in a well selected locality, with proper judgment thrown into the business, it is just possible that the raising of small fruits might prove as remunerative here as in the other provinces. Already about our cities and large towns of the west there are excellent chances for men on small areas producing high class products that will be put upon the market in a perfectly fresh condition.

You ought to have seen Mr. Marshall when he called upon Dolly the other night, remarked Johnny to his sister's young man, who was taking tea with the family. I tell you he looked fine sitting there alongside of her with his arm—

Johnny! gasped his sister, her face the color of a boiled lobster.

Well, so he did, persisted Johnny. He had his arm—

John, screamed his mother, frantically.

Why, whined the boy, I was—

John! said his father sternly, leave the room.

A Kitchener Story

Lord Kitchener thinks that marriage means the end of a soldier's career; in fact, a soldier should be wedded to his profession. Some time ago very well known lady to whom he had expounded this view relented by asking him a question.

If the officers of the army today are not to marry, said she, where are you to find the officers for the army tomorrow?

And Lord Kitchener, remembering that officers are usually the sons of officers, was silent.

Four Months Without Water

Sheep on the Nebo National forest, Utah, go four and a half months without water except for such moisture as they get from the dew and the juices of forage plants. Grazing sheep on a range entirely destitute of water is a recent innovation due to the increasing demand for forage and effort of the forest office to find a place on the forest ranges for all the stock that can be safely admitted. The area on the Nebo which has now proved useable by sheep is high and rocky, a portion of it being above timber line, and it has neither springs nor streams of sufficient size or accessibility to be used for stock watering purposes. The grazing season lasts from June 15 to October 31, and during this period of four and a half months the animals do not get a drink.

Under such conditions, however, the sheep have done extremely well, and last year's lamb from this range had an average weight at the close of the season of 68 pounds on the Chicago market, which was rather above the normal weight from that vicinity.

In one area on the Targhee forest in Idaho sheep get water only twice during the four months summer grazing season. There is no water on the range but the sheep are driven to a nearby stream lower down the mountainside. Lambs from this range weighed 65 pounds on the Chicago market.

A well-known Scotch professor was occasionally called up to Balmoral to attend the late Queen Victoria, and was extremely proud of the honor.

One day a notice appeared in the university which stated that Prof. — could not attend his classes that day as he had been called up to Balmoral to see the queen. A waggish student who saw the notice wrote underneath it: God save the Queen.

Be Wise

It is better to be wise than rich. We do not see this because we have all the world; and we are seized with the fever for money-getting and money-spending. There are thousands of people getting more satisfaction out of their quiet daily round of business and social life than any of these birds of paradise with their flitting to and fro upon the face of the earth. One of the most fatal things for the peace and happiness of any man is to be caught in the swirl of discontent that is caused by this envy of these so-called successful people. The wise shall inherit glory, but shame shall be the promotion of fools. The country would go to the dogs in a month if we were not for the quiet, steady, stay-at-homes who form the bone and sinew of our business, social and spiritual life. Learn the wisdom of being quiet and content when you are and leave boasters and promoters to their game of chance.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere

Father, said Little Ruth, appealingly, why don't you stay at home to work as other little girls' fathers do?

Father, who is the business manager of a great corporation, has to travel extensively, smiled fondly at his little daughter. I'd love to, Ruth, he answered, but you see I have to earn a lot of money to take care of my little girl and her mother, and I can't get enough work to do here at home.

Oh, father, cried Ruth, reprovingly.

I don't believe you've ever tried hard enough. Why, I have seen a sign out: Man wanted, lots and lots of things. There was one over in front of our grocery shop this very morning.

The diner glared.

On a plate, of course, you idiot! he roared.

If you were my husband, I'd give you poison.

Slowly and comprehensively the son of Erin surveyed the acrimonious woman, puffing quietly at his pipe.

If you were my wife, he said, as he quietly felt for his pouch, I'd take it.

Langham was the more convinced

Suppose we go to you. We want to go south tomorrow."

They n't be and left the club, taking Jinrikishi to the gate of the old walled city, gazing on the outskirts of the newer modern city.

"Your crew?" asked Oakley as they went down the narrow, crooked, ill-paved streets.

"A Chinese named Sun Kai said that Lin Wah, the missing servant, was seen to offer the emerald eye to a dealer in the gold beaters street."

"I know three goldsmiths in that street. It's this turn to the right," said Oakley, leading the way.

The first goldsmith professed ignorance of the emerald eye; the second one had seen it, but disparaged its value, and the third said it had been offered him by a Cantonese two days before and that the man had been seen running out of the city.

"I said to the south," was Oakley's comment.

"My impression is that it's nearer," said Langham doggedly, and something in his tone told the truth of the situation to Frank Oakley.

"Out with the whole thing, Langham," he said shortly. "What is it?
Are you trailing me, or what?"

"Well, you were there, you know."

"Did Mrs. Desbrow?"—Oakley choked on the words.

Langham shrugged his perfectly fitted shoulders. "No, indeed, old chap.
She wouldn't listen to a word against you."

But the house boy"—

Oakley laughed scornfully. "The house boy! Do you mean to say that you are holding the word of a Chinaman against mine, Langham?"

"He said he saw you," retorted the other shortly.

"Saw his grandmother!" was Oakley's cheerful reply. "You take my advice, Langham. If Mr. Desbrow got that emerald from one of the temples in south China it stands to reason that the worshippers will try to get it back."

"Those old things mean more to the native Chinese than they do to the decadent mandarins. They will fight for the emerald, and they will steal it again and again until it finally remains where it originally belonged—only they will leave a trail of blood in its wake."

"Very well," said the other sharply.
"Go ahead and I will follow."

"Find out for me where the temple is located and the name of the mandarin. Tomorrow morning we start for Canton, and from there we will travel cross country to the temple.
Once there we can scout around and see if the emerald is there."

"Good. Let us go back."

The next morning they were on their way to Canton via Hongkong.

As the journey progressed there grew up between the two men a vague inexpressible feeling of distrust.

At last they came into the province of the mandarin who had sold the emerald eye to Mr. Desbrow and here received permission to inspect the temple.

This man will direct you to the temple of the green idol," he said looking nervously at his watch, "that a man's fool to allow himself to be heade."

There was a general roar of laughter, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Then one of the men asked:

"And how did you come to make that startling discovery?"

"Well, it was this way. My wife was jumping on me something fierce, and I couldn't figure out how I deserved it. So I spanked up and said:

"Look here, why do you always pick on me when you're sore? Why don't you raise thunder with Albert once in awhile?" (Albert's our youngest boy.)

"Why," she says, "Albert wouldn't stand for it, that's why!"

"I'll have to see it there to believe it," said the other man obstinately.

By standing beneath the massive face one could look up and see that one half closed eye contained a sparkling emerald, while the other one was quite empty.

"Well?" questioned Langham, with a nasty smile.

"Well," retorted Frank, suddenly drawing a revolver and pressing it against the other's breast, "I'll give you just five minutes to restore the emerald eye to the idol," he said grimly.

"Me! What do you mean?" shouted Langham.

"What I say. I may as well tell you that I know where it is, and I congratulate you on having distracted attention from yourself."

"Where is it?" demanded Langham.

"Up with your hands!" ordered Frank sharply. And when the other's hands were out of the way Oakley's fingers passed deftly over the other's fingers. There were two bundles of letters and a cigarette case. A gold match safe disgorged the missing jewel, and Langham did not smile when Frank drew it from its hiding place and slipped it in his own pocket.
for he had determined to restore it to Mrs. Desbrow.

They separated that afternoon. Frank Oakley travelling on ahead to claim his reward and Langham to make other plans for the uncertain future.

Frank Oakley took the emerald eye back to its rightful owner, and when she mentioned a reward he was talked again about love and marriage until he persuaded her to name the wedding day.

"The emerald eye is our talisman of luck," he said to her on their wedding night.

"It was the means of poor Langham's temptation and fall," murmured the lovely bride. "It is like all talismans—the good or evil in the wearer have to do with its influence."

BEAUTY IN AN AX.

BLOWING TRIBUTE TO THE BEAUTY OF THE AMERICAN PRODUCT.

in Professor T. De Tarto's "Aesthetic Education" Von Hartmann's formal orders of beauty are the text, for several chapters, one of which in treating the proportion maintains the following thesis:

"There is an actual, possibly a necessary, correlation between mechanical efficiency and aesthetic proportion.
In other words, as a tool or a machine increases in all round efficiency there is a corresponding increase in the aesthetic quality of its proportions."

As an example the American ax,
"the most beautiful in existence," is described and analyzed:

"Theory, accident and experience have stood beside the truth at he has forged the blade, the head and the eye of the ax. The same forces have influenced the makers of the handle as they have selected the hickory, have shaped it in the rough with ax and drawing knife and finished it by the open fireside with knife and sandpaper and broken glass. From a straight, round stick it has become what we see,
a gracefully curving handle, fat enough to enable the woodsmen to hold the blade true, large enough to fit the hand comfortably, enlarged sufficiently at the end to make sure the grasp yet be not bar to the comfort of the user and curved enough to secure the maximum of ease and vigor of stroke."

"The whole constitutes a balanced perfection which is as beautiful in its proportion as it is efficient in its action. The edge of the blade rounds gently at its extremities for ease of entrance to the wood and recovery from it; above these rounded ends of the cutting edge the blade is made somewhat thinner front and back than through the body of the wedge, and for a similar reason, namely, that there may be greater recovery for the next stroke. The head is just massive enough to balance the blade and is either made square for striking a nonpenetrating blow or is gently rounded."

Salesmen and Smiles.

"The smile is one of the greatest assets of the successful salesman or saleswoman," says the manager of a department store linen department.

"It makes friends for the store as readily as do moderate prices and good goods."

"The ability to smile for eight hours a day is a trait hard to acquire and possessed by few store help. Yet it can be gained by constant practice—the watching of oneself and not permitting at any time the slightest indication of a frown."

"I recall my first purchase in a New York department store. I was directed to the counter where I could find the special article of my choice. I was met by a gruff 'What is it?' from the salesman. I recall I said, 'Nothing,' and I haven't been in that store since."—

M. J. White has sold his farm north of Cluny, and on Monday next all his stock and farm implements, etc., will be offered for sale by auction. Mr. White says he got a good price for his land, and is going to Texas where he has purchased an irrigated farm. He says that while in Texas the quality of grain can not be raised that is produced in Alberta, the price is much higher and more money can be made despite the fact that it will cost a little more to produce grain by irrigation. He learned this while on a visit to Texas last winter. He says there he can raise six crops of alfalfa each year. He is evidently a believer in reciprocity, and thinks that a mistake was made when the chance to get better prices for grain was offering.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

You can have the CALL every week from now to Dec. 31st, 1914, for $1.50.

Mrs. Jowett returned Sunday from Calgary, where she spent a week visiting friends.

Wade, Wilson and Gavin Jack supply some valuable information to farmers in their ad in the CALL each week, which all will do well to read carefully.

D. S. Curran, who has been in charge of the Bank of Commerce here, during Mr. Cameron's absence in the old world, left yesterday to take charge of the Hanna branch.

The Calgary sixth annual Winter Show is to be held in the Horse Show building, Victoria Park, from Nov. 25th to 28th. The prize list is now issued and copies may be obtained on application to Secretary Charles Carey.

Mrs. Marshall and her daughter, Mrs. King, of Saskatoon left yesterday to visit her son Yorkie at Vera Sask. She expects to spend most of the winter in the north. Yorkie's many Gleichen friends will be pleased to learn that he is doing a good business at Vera.

Chas. Marshall opened his photo studio on Fourth ave., Monday, where he has an up-to-date establishment, in fact the best Gleichen has ever had, the building being equipped with huge sky and side light, and the interior remodeled. He is now prepared to turn out first-class work on short notice. He all to know that in future all orders will be strictly cash in advance.

J. C. Davie of Cincinnati has left for home after visiting L. P. Grady for about two weeks, the two being friends for over 30 years. Mr. Davie has been private secretary to President M. E. Ingles of the New York Central Railway during all these years, while Mr. Grady was an engineer on the road until he came to Gleichen six years ago. As Mr. Grady puts it Mr. Davie is a nice looking young man to be 64 years of age and we must say is younger looking and more handsome than Mr. Grady who is one year his junior. These young fellows spent several days hunting while Mr. Davie was here and were as full of enthusiasm as some of our old men of 30 years, and just as full of life and fun. Mr. Davie hopes to return again to Gleichen to spend a vacation with his old friend and the many new ones he made while here.

UNITED FARMERS MEET

The usual monthly meeting of the United Farmers local branch was held on Saturday last at the Palace hotel, when a very fair number put in an appearance considering the present rush in hauling grain.

The assistant secretary reported that he daily expected a carload of apples and one of flour to arrive, and ask for instructions regarding their distribution. It was decided that owing to the apples being perishable and having no cellar storage, that they should be distributed immediately on arrival. The chairman, who also is president of the Elevator and Warehouse Board of Directors, intimated that elevator shareholders would be supplied at 10¢ per box of apples, bag of flour or ton of coal, over cost price; U. F. A. members 20¢; and the public 30¢. The secretary was instructed to insert an ad in the CALL requesting the members to keep in close touch with the elevator warehouse so as to learn of their arrival at the earliest moment to avoid disappointment in getting supplied.

The car distribution was also discussed and some members reported irregularities which had come under their notice. The secretary intimated that he had one hundred copies of the Canada Grain Act for distribution to any member on application. After disposing of other routine business the meeting adjourned for two weeks, when they will arrange for special meetings during the winter.

Baby Scalded--Dies

Another sad fatality has occurred and another home is saddened. The hand of death has taken little Clarence Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Standard. The end came last Tuesday afternoon just 24 hours after the lad had suffered severe injuries from scalding.

Mrs. Smith had been washing clothes, and had taken a boiler of hot water off the stove and set it on the floor, when Clarence came running to his mother. He struck the boiler, and before the mother could realize what was happening, he fell into the boiling hot water. Mrs. Smith pulled him out immediately and, assisted by kind neighbors, did everything possible to relieve the pain. A doctor was called and it was found the most severe burns were from his shoulder to his hip on the left side. Despite all the loving efforts, the shock upon the child's system was too great, and he passed away the next day.

Funeral services were held at the home Friday by the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, and interment was in the Gleichen cemetery.
